

Maximum Allowable Contributions

How it's calculated and how OMNI helps.

One of OMNI's key services is to ensure strict compliance with IRS regulations. To that end, OMNI calculates and tracks each participant's Maximum Allowable Contribution ("MAC") and provides a report at the beginning of every year. A participant's MAC can sometimes be increased by certain catch-up provisions, eligibility for which is also calculated by OMNI.

Base Limit:

The IRS sets a base limit amount that a participant can contribute to their 403(b). This limit is typically set near the end of the tax year and may increase from time to time. For 2017, the base limit is $18,000. Certain employees may be eligible to shelter additional funds through the following catch-up provisions:

Age Catch-up:

In the year a participant turns 50, the IRS allows an additional Catch-up Contribution. As with the base limit, this amount is subject to change every year and is currently at $6,000. Therefore, 403(b) participants that are age 50 and older can contribute $24,000 in 2017.

Service Based Catch-up:

Eligibility for the "Service Based Catch-up" can be difficult to determine. Employees who have attained 15 or more years of service may be eligible for an additional contribution of up to $3,000 above their base limit (which itself may be increased by the age based limit). Accordingly, participants who qualify may contribute $21,000 annually or $27,000 if they are 50 or older. Eligibility for the Service Based Catch-Up is neither automatic nor permanent, and can only be determined through a detailed review of a participant's historical 403(b) contributions, as well as ongoing monitoring of further contributions.

Importantly, OMNI's systems and staff monitor contributions with every payroll to assure that contributions cease prior to a participant reaching his/her limit and prior to the plan sponsor withholding the participant's contribution from his/her paycheck. If a participant appears to be on track to exceed his/her MAC, OMNI will provide you with ample notice that contributions must be suspended.
